

AMENDMENTS TO THE SPECIFICATION:

Please amend the specification to add an Abstract as follows:

Abstract

A method for the computer-aided provision of database information of a database is described in which, for the database, a statistical model is formed which represents the statistical relationships between the data elements contained in the database; in which the statistical model is stored in a server computer; in which the statistical model is transmitted from the server computer to a client computer via a communications network; and in which the received, statistical model is further processed by the client computer.